

The Romans battle in London.

One cold, rainy and windy day in London Mercury came and knocked on the magic window glass door. He shouted: 'danger is on the way; danger is on the way.'

'Who are you?' and 'What's your name?'

'I'm Mercury the messenger sent from the gods.'

'Give me proof that you are the messenger.'

'Open the door and I will show you my boot with wings. That's fine. It is you.'

'Come in and tell me what is so dangerous you had to rush here. Mercury said that Romans are coming to fight with you and invade your country!'

'You must break free and go to live somewhere safe. The magic glass window says what are you talking about? What Romans?'

Mercury says 'I've seen them in thousands marching through the woods wearing plate armours and helmets, carrying swords, shields, bows and arrows. They will be here at dawn, you haven't got much time to run away!'

All of a sudden they could hear a noise on cobbled streets.

Mercury shouted 'they're here, they're here! run away. But it was too late. The Romans had started their battle - killing people, breaking houses and shops. The magic window said you must go now. I'll try to break myself free. Mercury said I'll come and check on you later. Yes that's fine. Just go now. Finally the magic window managed to escape. Meanwhile the battle had got worse.'

The Romans killed half the population of London, flattened their houses to the ground and imprisoned the others to make them slaves. The Romans took London for themselves they won the battle. When they settled down they started building houses, churches, theatres and roads which they were good at.

The magic window glass found a thother house to live in. It had survived that's why we can see some broken pieces in torquay museum today.